TEARDOWN · A 5-PERSON AGENCY, [MONTH] 2026

$2,310

a month. That was the software bill.

We rebuilt the same stack for $47. Two swaps were a pain.

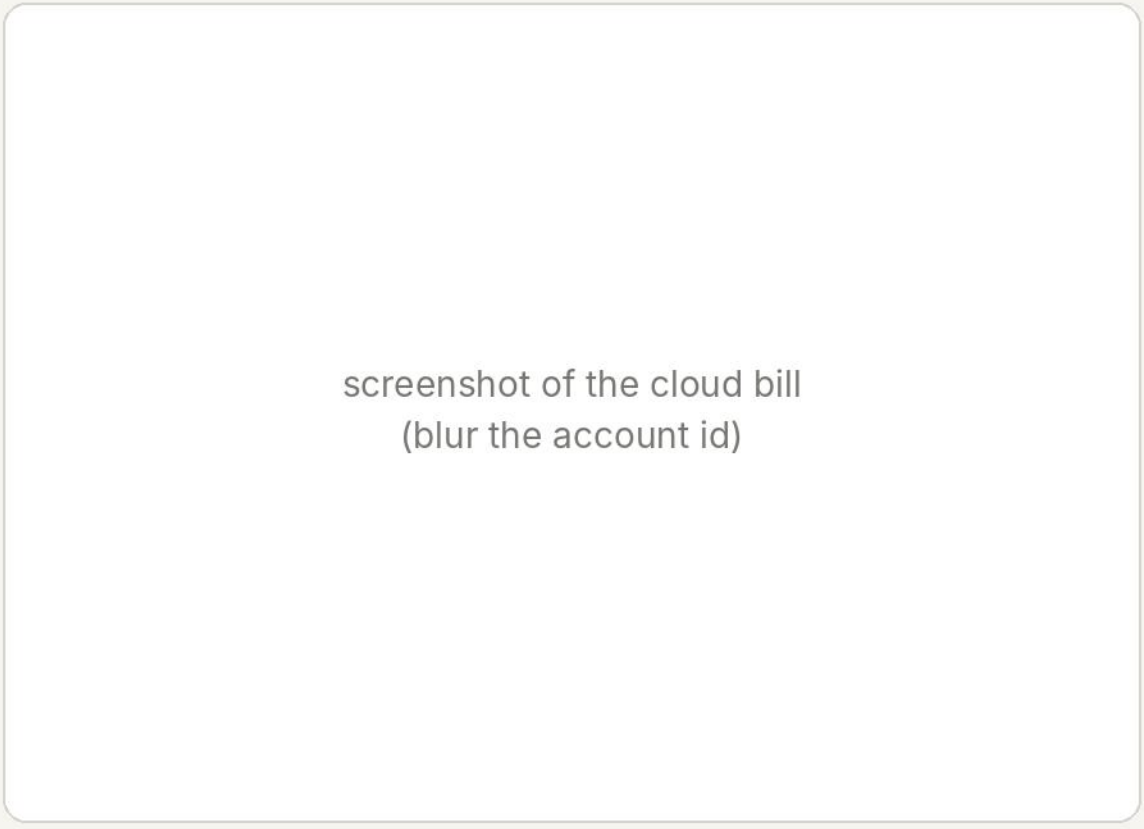

Every line, what replaced it, what we kept, what annoyed us.

$47

a month, after

WHERE IT STARTED

The billing page nobody had opened since [2024].

$1,621 of the $2,310 was on-demand cloud for workloads that fit on one small box. This slide is most of the story.

about $1,650 a year

ALL FIVE, SIDE BY SIDE

Monthly, before and after. Give or take, depends on your plan.

We could have stopped after the hosting line and saved 70%. We didn't, because once you start it's hard to stop.

IF YOU WANT TO COPY IT

What we actually did, in order

01 Rented the smallest Hetzner box, about $6. Took ten minutes.

02 Installed Docker, started Twenty. The make command does most of it.

git clone twentyhq/twenty && make up

03 Started Chatwoot on the same box. Then spent [two evenings] on WhatsApp.

```
docker compose up -d

04 Imported the HubSpot CSV, added the chat widget, ran both stacks in parallel for [two weeks], then cancelled.

About a weekend plus the WhatsApp evenings. Skills needed: copy, paste, patience.

THE HONEST BIT

If the $6 box dies on a Saturday, that's our Saturday. For $2,263 a month, we'll take the Saturday.

— Lean Stack

One swap a day. Free when it's good enough, cheap when it isn't.

Next week's teardown is yours if you send a bill. Blur the company name. Form and all the links are in the first comment.
